In-house Repairing Services

The proliferation of Surface Mount Device (SMD) technology and multi-layer Printed Circuit Boards (PCBs) has significantly increased the complexity of PCB testing. Consequently, fault-finding requires a systematic and logical investigative approach. We identify defective components using sophisticated testing equipment that simulates appropriate inputs to the various components and measures their corresponding outputs. By analyzing the input/output characteristics, we can confirm whether a component is faulty. This versatile methodology allows us to effectively test and troubleshoot a wide variety of PCBs used across the industry.
